Plans Made To Call Men 21-30 Years

War Department Will Plan to Register Conscripts Safely Inside Limits

Is Big Problem

Age Question Is Still Leading Issue About Measure

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Although congressional agreement was still in abeyance on conscription age limits, the war department has made plans, it was disclosed today, to register men from 21 through 30 years old as a separate group in event the broader 21-through-44 age bracket eventually receives approval.

The war department's decision was said to be in the interest of minimizing delay on the actual start of the compulsory military service program, once the Burke-Wadsworth legislation becomes law.

The age question continued the major problem today, as the joint Senate-House conference committee renewed its efforts to compose the differences occurring in the varying drafts of the Burke-Wadsworth bill voted by the two chambers. The committee reached agreement on some minor points yesterday in a six hour session lasting until after the dinner hour.

House conferees were to give their answer to a compromise proposal by Senate members for fixing the upper age limit at 39, instead of the 44-year maximum previously approved by House vote.

The Senate version of the measure called for registration of all men from 21 through 30 years old, but the House upped this to include all from 21 through 44.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.), of the Senate military committee, said the Senate conferees offered to compromise on a provision to include men from 21 through 39, but House members wanted to defer decision overnight.

Thomas Offers Proposal

Senator Thomas (D-Utah) individually offered a proposal to make the top age 35, but this also was held in abeyance, Sheppard said.

With Senate conferees thus giving way on the age dispute, some members said there were indications that the House's 21-44 age bracket finally would prevail.

In this connection, Rep. Wadsworth (R-N.Y.), co-author of the bill but not a conferee, told reporters it was his understanding that if the broader age range was approved, the war department planned to register the men affected in two groups and on separate days.

The approximately 12,000,000 men from 21 through 30 would be registered first, it was understood, so that their cards might be classified and trainees selected without the complications which would arise in sorting 12,000,000 cards to be filled out later by men from 31 through 44.

With decision believed near on the age question, Sheppard said no appreciable progress had been made by the joint committee on the second important controversial point—the House amendment deferring conscription for 60 days while attempts were made to fill the army's initial quota of 400,000 men by voluntary enlistments.

He predicted, however, that agreement might be reached late in the day on this and other points so that draftsmen could whip the measure into shape for presentation to the Senate by Friday.

The conferees agreed yesterday, Sheppard said, to a Senate provision limiting to 900,000 the number of army conscripts who might be in training at any one period in peacetime. The House had voted to limit the number to 1,000,000 in all branches of the service.

Senate provisions tightening the exemption clauses on government officials were approved as was a section throwing the aviation

Airplanes Bomb Barges; Potsdam Depot Is Struck

Prime Minister Tells Nation Next Week Will Be Important One; Reichstag Is Bombed by British Night Fliers

London, Sept. 11 (AP via Radio)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today Germany is preparing for the invasion of England by moving hundreds of self-propelled barges down from northern ports to the French coast opposite Britain's shores.

Widespread bombing attacks by British planes on concentrations of barges along the German-held French, Belgian and Dutch coasts, such as might be used for an invasion of Britain, were reported tonight by the air ministry.

These craft and troop convoys, the prime minister said, are moving into position under the protection of the big German guns set up on the French coast.

"No one should blind himself to the fact that this German invasion is being planned with all the German craft and method characteristic of them," he declared.

The next week, he said, "must be regarded as a very important one for us in our history."

He compared it with the attempt of the Spanish Armada to invade the British Isles and the later attempt of Napoleon.

"Every man and woman must prepare to do his duty, whatever it may be with special pride and care," he said.

"Our fleet is very powerful, our shores are well fortified and well manned, and behind these walls we have a better equipped

Keen Interest Is Fixed Upon Speech F. D. R. Will Give

Press Secretary Says This Will Be Labor Speech, but Roosevelt Says Specie Uncertain

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Keen interest centered today on President Roosevelt's address to the International Teamsters convention—an address announced by his press secretary as "in all probability the labor speech of the campaign."

Mr. Roosevelt will make the address in Constitution Hall tonight (from 9:30 to 10 p.m., E. S. T.), but he said to reporters yesterday that no one would be able to tell whether it was political even after it had been delivered.

German Bombings May Signal Forthcoming Anglo Invasion.

If Such Is True, Onslaught Soon Will Reach Crescendo Of Terror to Numb Civilians

Hitler's Newspaper Says Present Raids Are Only 'Battle of London' and Real English Attack Will Come At Time Held Proper

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There is an ominous look in the Nazi resumption of nation-wide bombing of Britain after four nights of blood-bath for London.

This may be the prelude to an attempt at invasion with soldiery. Any such adventure must be preceded by a general and violent aerial assault, to reduce the country to as near a state of insensibility as possible.

If it is indeed the signal for an effort to make one of Fuehrer Hitler's greatest dreams come true, then the universal bombing may be expected to rise quickly in a fierce crescendo. At the peak of this the invasion will be tried, if at all.

Whether Hitler will essay this hazardous operation, which stymied even Napoleon, must depend on circumstances. We do know that the Germans have made all preparations for the eventuality—even have a motley armada of small boats ready to dare the choppy waters of the English Channel.

To my mind the Nazi chieftain will undertake it if there seems any chance of success, for he must achieve victory now at all legitimate hazards. Even a draw in the conflict at this time would do irreparable damage to his hypnotic prestige over the small countries of Europe—to say nothing of giving England a chance to build a powerful war machine against him, and tighten the blockade garrote about his neck.

Only yesterday Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, said it was a mistake to call the present drive on England "the battle of Great Britain" and that "Germans modestly regard this merely as the battle of London from which will develop the battle of Great Britain." German military commentators also aver that the attack has just begun.

May Expand Soon

Allowing a certain amount of leeway for wishful thinking in these statements, there would seem no reason to doubt that the conflict may take on far greater proportions in the immediate future. Irrespective of invasion, this will mean a general onslaught from the air in an effort to destroy industries and other military objectives (not overlooking civilian morale) and thus prevent England from acquiring a strength which might permit her to carry

WRECKAGE OF LONDON MOVIE AFTER AIR RAID

German bombs wrought this damage to a motion picture house in London during heavy raids on the British capital. The British censor-approved caption says the ruins were caused by demolition and incendiary bombs. Theatre managers planned early closings, since the most severe raids recently have been at night. Picture from London by radio.

Rescue Workers Search for Victims Of Italian Raid

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Sept. 11 (P)—Rescue workers searched through the ruins of numerous homes today for additional bodies of victims of yesterday's bombing by Italian planes in which the list of known dead has reached 112 people and the wounded 151.

The first official check showed there were 55 children among the dead.

Many Jewish mothers, weeping brokenly, joined air raid patrol workers as they dug in the debris.

Many of the victims have already been buried. Crowds followed the coffins as they were borne through streets and squares.

Before the funeral processions the bodies lay in state in the Balfour Municipal School and were viewed by nearly 200,000 persons.

A noted cellist, Joachim Stochowski, was among the wounded.

British officials reiterated a charge that the Italian bombing was "indiscriminate," declaring there are no military objectives within 30 miles of Tel Aviv.

Townsend Club Will Show Special Movies Tonight

A special feature of the meeting of Townsend Club, No. 1, tonight at Mechanics' Hall, Henry street, will be a graphic series of moving pictures thrown upon the screen showing many stirring scenes and facts of the Townsend movement, under the direction of Frederick G. Brooks of Schenectady, the national representative of the Townsend movement that this country alone could probably well take up the slack caused by wholesale destruction.

So Britain's outlook won't be so dark, if she can survive the present crisis.

Roy Lee Smith of This City and Another Slated

Jury trials on charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated are slated for tonight and Thursday night in police court.

The jury trial this evening is that of Roy Lee Smith, a negro of this city, who was arrested on February 13, on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated. It is alleged the car he was driving crashed into the porch of the Hudson rooming house on North Front street, at the head of Clinton avenue.

Thursday evening a jury trial will be held in the case of Kenneth Signor of Cottekill, who was arrested on June 18, following a collision between the car he was operating and a car driven by Mrs. Sadie Gruberg of 728 Broadway, in front of the Benedictine Hospital.

Primary Day is Tuesday, September 17, when the polls will be open from 12 o'clock noon until 9 o'clock that evening. As there are no contests in the two major parties little interest is being displayed in the event.

Donates Original Sketch To Help British People

New York, Sept. 11—Grant Wood, one of America's greatest artists, has given an original drawing, which graphically portrays the plight of British women and children as Hitler's blitzkrieg nears its climax, to Bundles for Britain, Inc., as his contribution to the American organization's campaign to help the British people.

Wood's drawing, sketched in three weeks time and used by Bundles for Britain to illustrate an appeal poster, depicts a mother and her child on their knees gazing white-faced into the skies, where two British fighter planes are battling two Nazi bombers.

Around the mother and child are the stark, blackened ruins left by the bombs of the German planes.

"Mr. Wood's generosity in giving so much of his time to preparing this truly marvelous sketch for us is deeply appreciated by every member of Bundles for Britain," Mr. Wales Latham, national president of the organization, said today. "It is a voluntary contribution by one of our truly great American artists and it will do much to aid the cause of Great Britain and democracy in general."

The posters, appealing to Americans to help England now by donations to Bundles for Britain, will be distributed over the nation by members of the organization, formed to send clothing, medical supplies and equipment to Great Britain.

Clippers Flying To New Zealand

Pan-American Planes Will Carry Passenger Loads

San Francisco, Sept. 11 (P)—Reaching out across the lonely South Pacific, Pan American Airways, Clipper planes today begin carrying passengers between the United States and New Zealand.

This service culminates months of exploratory flying and pioneering of the route with mail and express loads.

Hitherto, it has taken 17 days by steamer to reach New Zealand, and the steamers sailed only once a month.

The clipper ships will cut the travel time down to about 4½ days and will leave the United States every two weeks.

There were 12 passengers booked for the initial flight aboard the American Clipper from its Treasury Island base here. Two others were to board the plane at Los Angeles.

Listed among the passengers was Mrs. Clark Adams of Long Island, New York, who was aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its pioneering flight, on the dirigible Hindenburg and has made several "first flights" on clipper ships across the Pacific and Atlantic.

Other passengers included Milton Untermyer and F. Petterson, both of New York.

At Los Angeles, W. S. Robinson of New York and G. I. A. Spittle of London will board the clipper.

Dr. F. P. Lewis Dies At Brookhaven Home

Brookhaven, N. Y., Sept. 11 (P)—Private funeral services at his Long Island summer home were planned today for Dr. Francis Park Lewis, 85, of Buffalo, N. Y., internationally known ophthalmologist.

The distinguished eye specialist died in a hospital last night.

Winner of the Leslie Dana gold medal in 1928 for his work in the prevention of blindness and the conservation of vision, Dr. Lewis was president of both the National Society and International Association for the prevention of blindness.

He was for 40 years president of the New York State School for the Blind at Batavia, N. Y., one of whose buildings is named for him.

A native of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, he practiced in Buffalo for more than 50 years, and served as consulting surgeon for the New York Central Railroad.

Dies of Injuries

Ellenville, N. Y., Sept. 10 (P)—William Holmes, 46, of Newburgh, steel worker on construction of the Lackawack dam, died in a hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when he fell 50 feet from a concrete form.

Speaker Bankhead Is Seriously Ill

Noted Statesman Reported Weakened by Work

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (P)—Speaker William B. Bankhead, weakened by constant strain of congressional duties in the midst of a national emergency, remained under close medical observation at his hotel today after collapsing half an hour before a scheduled nation-wide radio address.

The 66-year-old Alabamian, who took over in 1936 a job which had claimed the lives of three men in four years, fainted in his room last night from what Dr. George W. Calver, capital physician, said was an "excruciatingly painful attack of sciatica."

Although Dr. Calver issued a midnight bulletin saying his patient was "resting easily," the physician spent most of the night in the Bankhead suite, cat-napping on a lounge.

The speaker was to have keynoted a rally formally launching the Democratic campaign in Maryland. His address, defending President Roosevelt's right to seek a third term, was read to the rally by Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor.

Tallulah Bankhead, the speaker's actress-daughter, chartered a plane in New York when advised of his illness and landed here at 1:20 a.m. (E. S. T.) today with her sister, Mrs. Eugenia Hoyt, and Miss Dola Cavendish, her secretary.

Sheriff Is Struck By 10-Ton Truck

Was at Scene of Accident When Mishap Occurred

Sheriff A. F. Molyneaux is on duty this morning, although he has a limp in one leg with a big black and blue spot on his hip, and decidedly sore spots on both shoulders and other portions of his body.

At that he is glad that things are no worse following his being struck by a 10-ton truck and trailer while investigating an automobile accident at Port Ewen at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Sheriff Molyneaux, with Deputies Vredenburg, Brown and Winne, were called to Port Ewen to investigate a collision between cars driven by Henry Gregorio of Little Italy Road, Highland, and John W. Stockbridge of 6 East Franklin street, Baltimore, Md.

They found that Stockbridge, driving south, was turning from the main road to enter Stout avenue when the almost head-on collision with the Gregorio car, coming toward Kingston, took place.

Stockbridge received lacerations on both knees and Mrs. Stockbridge suffered a head injury and shock.

Other passengers included Milton Untermyer and F. Petterson, both of New York.

At Los Angeles, W. S. Robinson of New York and G. I. A. Spittle of London will board the clipper.

STOP! LOOK! THINK!

Between the World War and the outbreak of the present war, there was a steady output of books about international affairs. Almost every writer who mentioned the subject insisted that if another war came to Europe it was bound to be a world war and the United States couldn't stay out even if it wanted to. And we all believed them.

With that fearful conviction widely accepted, Americans watched the developments of the summer of 1939 with acute interest. When the British and French declarations of war against Germany finally came, most Americans probably thought our early entry was inevitable.

Then a reaction occurred in public opinion. Voices were heard saying not only that we could stay out, but that we must stay out. Our greatest chance to serve civilization, preserve democracy and restore a shattered Europe lay in our remaining at peace. Most important, we began to feel that we could decide our course for ourselves.

Today the talk of entering the war is heard again. Depending on the speaker's point of view, we are "being tricked into it by Great Britain," "pushed in by a clique in our own country," "forced in by the trend of events." Whether this talk represents merely a pendulum swing of public opinion, or whether it comes with dawning recognition of the world-revolutionary character of the war, perhaps no one is competent to say yet. It is important, however, that thoughtful Americans weigh such talk, study its source and purpose, and finally do whatever they do calmly and intelligently, with their eyes open and minds clear.

PLANNED CAREERS

Cleveland College of Western Reserve University gives a free course in "How to Study" a week or two before its regular fall term starts. This year it introduced a free preliminary course on "Career Planning."

"The most patriotic thing a young person can do these days," said the educator who addressed the first audience, "is to plan his future thoughtfully. This nation is going to succeed as more of its people learn where they are going, why, and how to get there. Any nation succeeds as it makes use of its man power, ability, intellect and interests."

The six steps suggested for planning a career were: Learn about different occupations. Analyze some of them. Learn all you can about yourself. Relate these sets of fact to each other. Choose a career on the basis of all this information. Go after the job you want.

He might have added: Don't hesitate to strike out in a new field if you see one. It may take more initiative and courage to do that, but it has its rewards, especially since some of the old and more familiar occupations have been overcrowded in recent years.

INVISIBILITY

That invisibility argument in the European war is one of the most interesting developments yet. German anti-aircraft men have been saying the British warplanes have a varnish that makes them invisible, and the British deny it.

The Nazi explanation might be regarded as merely an "out" for poor eyes or bad marksmanship. The British Air Force naturally would deny it if they had such a wonderful boon as invisibility. No doubt that is the eager quest now of both sides, and they may be expected to make more progress in it.

How it would work out if they both succeeded may be imagined from an old story by the American fiction writer, Jack London. He told of two friends who, in a quest for invisibility, became bitter enemies. They both solved the problem but in different ways. One swallowed a potion that made his body transparent, so that the sun shone through him. The other painted his body with a preparation so black that it absorbed all the light, thus leaving him invisible. But he had the disadvantage of casting a shadow. The two met on a sunny day and discovered each other's presence, and while a friend watched the conflict by following the shadow, they fought to their mutual death.

THE FUTURE

One of the most interesting attractions at the New York World's Fair has been the "Futurama," which presents a wonderful preview of what human life and environment may be in America hereafter. It seems to be not so much a dream as an imaginative projection of present life and progress, the blossoming of civilized forces already at work and moving toward fruition with growing speed.

There has been much question whether this exhibit should be demolished with the rest when the fair closes on October 27. The decision is to destroy it. It would be difficult to remove and set up again anywhere.

It seems a pity to abandon so fine a fillip to the imagination. But perhaps the fair officials are right. And there is a factor here worth thinking about. Who knows now what course civilization will take after the present war? If one side wins, it may be sterile dictatorship and fixed forms of life. If the other side wins, creative imagination may blossom anew. Then humanity, released from fear and perhaps from poverty, may express its aspirations and dreams gloriously in ways now unforeseen.

CASH FOR CAROL?

There was a practical note in that Rumanian abdication which may be common to such affairs, though it is not usually brought to the fore so bluntly. As the Iron Guards took their stand around the palace to force Carol's action, they are said to have shouted, "Carol must abdicate! But don't let him take the money!"

Subsequent reports do not say whether Carol left Rumania with funds in his pockets or not, but even an ex-king must eat. Perhaps the Rumanian government can find a job for him somewhere.

"National Defense Booming on All Fronts, Survey Shows" and "National Defense Lags" say the obliging headlines. No doubt it's all a matter of definition, anyway, or whether the writer is an isolationist or interventionist.

This nation has no desire to attack any other nation. The purpose of our defense measures is to prevent any one's attacking us. Why, then, all the war jitters?

INSULIN FOR MENTAL PATIENTS

One of the most effective forms of treatment for mental patients who are in an excited or even dangerous frame of mind is the use of hot baths. The hot baths so soothe the nerves that the patient becomes quiet, often going off into a sound sleep. The use of quieting drugs is another method allaying violent symptoms in these patients.

Insulin, causing shock, is now being used in practically all mental hospitals. That doses of insulin kept so small that they do not shock but still help mental patients is recorded by Drs. C. R. Bennett and T. K. Miller, Camarillo, California, in the American Journal of Psychiatry. They used these small doses of insulin in 125 cases which formerly had been treated by both baths and quieting drugs.

They state that nearly every case of acute manic excitement was controlled within an average period of 36 hours with insulin, without the use of hot baths or quieting drugs. The hot baths and quieting drugs are now used only in epileptic cases, or in those cases where excitability occurs only at night. Improvement in newly admitted cases of dementia precox (persistent dream state), depression and melancholy states is in many instances almost miraculous because the changes are so rapid.

The improvement does not continue if the insulin is discontinued as soon as improvement is noticed. Usually from three to eight weeks of continued treatment is required to bring about complete relief of the symptoms.

All patients improve remarkably in their general physical condition, gaining weight on an average of 15 pounds within six weeks. Warts, carbuncles, and acne (pimples) in these patients disappear quickly. It has become "routine" now to give insulin to any patient threatened with boils. Acne does not always respond favorably.

By the use of insulin the so-called "disturbed" ward has passed away.

When we consider that mental hospitals have more patients than all the other hospitals combined and that dementia precox patients make up the largest number of mental patients, it is gratifying to know that insulin in small doses is bringing relief to so many of these cases.

Maine Election Shows That Tide of Four Years Ago, Rolling for New Deal, Now Is at Ebb

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1940)

Washington, Sept. 11—What ever tide was rolling for the New Deal throughout the country four years ago was manifest even in Maine, and this year the election just held shows a pronounced recession in that same tide.

Louis Brann, who ran for United States senator on the Democratic ticket, is an excellent voter-getter and personally popular. Four years ago he lost by a margin of only 4,600 votes against Senator White, Republican, but this time he lost by a margin of about 46,000. It is not often that the same personality comes up twice in succession on the losing side so as to permit comparisons to be made without the oft-suggested argument that two elections are not comparable when the candidates are different.

To be defeated this time by a margin ten times as great as four years ago must be something of a shock to Mr. Brann, who incidentally is one of the few Democrats ever elected governor of Maine. But, according to Senator-elect Brewster, Republican, Mr. Brann made the mistake this time of coming out for the third term for Mr. Roosevelt, asking voters to support him on the issue of a vote for Brann being really a vote for Roosevelt.

In the gubernatorial and congressional contests, the real measure of the Republican victory can be made, for here there was no strong personality on the Democratic side in every case such as Brann has proved himself to be at the polls. The Republicans polled 64 per cent of the vote in the gubernatorial and 66 per cent of the vote in the congressional contests as compared with their 59 per cent in the senatorial election.

Some observers feel that the total vote in the congressional contests is a better indication of Maine's voting interest on national issues than is either the senatorial or the gubernatorial races because each of the candidates must stand up to party strength and be compared. In this instance, all three members of Congress elected got better than 20,000 majority which is very high as contrasted to four years ago when none reached that point.

The Maine result is the most encouraging piece of news for the followers of Wendell Willkie that has happened since the conventions. It completely refutes the New Deal charge that the Republican campaign has been slumping among Republicans. Rather it indicates clearly that the strength of Willkie is not confined alone to independent voters who disregard party lines, but to traditional Republicans as well. It serves to confirm the strategy of those Willkie enthusiasts who have been saying that he would gather in

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

"Pistol Row" in High Falls and the activities of the Citizens' League in Ulster county formed a greater part of the news in the newspapers of Kingston during 1910-11 when the Ashokan reservoir was under construction. The sittings of the various condemnations committees taking evidence in property damages for lands taken for reservoir purpose also occupied a prominent place in the news.

"Pistol Row" as it was dubbed came into the limelight by the number of crimes said to be committed within the district, and the Citizens' League was active in trying to see to it that the various laws were strictly enforced.

It was in 1912 that the newly organized Bull Moose party also played a prominent part in the political affairs of Ulster county. In Kingston the late Henry B. Ingram was dubbed the field marshal of the party, which had been formed when Teddy Roosevelt and Taft split. The new party endorsed Roosevelt for the presidency and as a result of the forming of the new party Woodrow Wilson was swept into office.

Mr. Ingram was a newspaper man, song writer and active in many lines, including the political, and was a picturesque figure in the life of Kingston at the turn of the century. The Bull Moose chairman in Ulster county was L. C. Tuckerman.

Speaking of politics it was on Tuesday, September 17, 1912, that the first direct primary for the nomination of candidates for political office were held in Ulster county and throughout the state.

In Ulster county but little interest was displayed and only a little more than 10 per cent of the enrolled voters of the county cast their ballots.

Boy Scouts were active in Kingston and Ulster county in 1912 and that year there were only eight Eagle Scouts in the more than 400,000 Boy Scouts in the United States.

Of that number four were members of the Boy Scout organization at Brown Station, and the fifth was the Scout Master at that hamlet, Sidney K. Clapp, the only Scout Master in the United States who was an Eagle Scout.

The four other Eagle Scouts were J. S. Langthorne, Jr., Robert T. Pleasants, Bertram Van Vliet and Leon Van Vliet.

Mr. Clapp is now a resident of Kingston, and for several years served as head of the tree committee, working for the preservation of the many fine shade trees along the city's streets.

Green soybeans are sometimes cooked and served in the pods and eaten from the fingers. The pods are dipped in melted butter sea-soned with soy sauce.

the 17,000,000 basic Republican vote and that all he needs is a change of about 3,500,000 among the independent voters to win the election.

Incidentally the Maine election proves how serviceable are the pre-election poles of Dr. Gallup. The latter predicted that the Republicans would get 62 per cent of the vote in the Senatorial, and 68 per cent of the gubernatorial as compared with an actual 59 per cent in the first and 64 per cent in the second. The difference is unquestionably due to rainy weather on election day. It is conceded among politicians that in bad weather the Republicans in the rural districts do not come to the polls in as great a number as in fair weather due to impassable roads and disqualification of women voters to make the long journeys necessary in the rural districts to get to the polling places.

The latest figures show that only 260,000 persons voted in Maine this week as compared to 311,000 four years ago in the same September election. This would seem to indicate that if the same total vote had been polled, the rural districts which showed a 70 per cent for the Republicans on Monday would have increased the figure to a point beyond the Gallup poll estimates. If anything, therefore, it may be that the Gallup poll represents an underestimate of the Republican strength in Maine assuming an election on a fair day for the Presidential candidates. Four years ago, for instance, Senator White won the state by about 4,600 in September and Landon carried it by 45,000 in November so that it may be expected now that Wendell Willkie will carry Maine by a majority ranging from 70,000 to 100,000.

Much discussion has prevailed here about the statistical computations of Dr. Louis Bean, New Deal economist, who arbitrarily takes an average of the senatorial, gubernatorial and congressional percentages put together and then says the Republicans must get 18 points in Maine above that average in order to win the election throughout the country. This means that the Republicans have to get a 67 per cent vote in Maine. They actually got 66 per cent in the congressional race which if the full Republican strength had been polled on a day of fair weather would have gone far beyond 66 and closer to 70 per cent.

By whatever yardstick the result in Maine is measured, it is clear that the New Deal has lost considerably since 1936. A sampling of 260,000 voters of all kinds, rich and poor, farmer and city worker, and wage earner, is a fairly accurate approximation of what other voters in New England will do on Election Day. It looks as though the trend is toward Republican nominees and away from New Deal radicalism.

"PILGRIM'S WAY"

By John Buchan
(Lord Tweedsmuir)

John Buchan's autobiography seems peculiarly a product of an England that has gone forever, no matter whether Hitler wins or loses. It was written out of an habit of thought which had its basis in security.

Buchan's habit of thought rooted in his Scottish boyhood, was a child of the manse, and although independence of thought and manner are as much a part of a Scot as his unintelligible dialect, Buchan's own life shows that independence can be found in a Tory as well as in more liberal camps. It shows, too, that a Tory was not necessarily the horrendous bogey against which Strachey and others fled—Buchan's sympathy was with the king was kind. Buch

Hotel Minimum Wage Hearing

Will Be Held Friday at Syracuse Office

New York, Sept. 11.—The fourth public hearing on the report and recommendations of the Hotel Minimum Wage Board will be held in the State Office Building, 214 South Warren street, Syracuse, on Friday, September 13, at 2 p. m., was announced today by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller. Hearings have already been held in Buffalo, Albany and New York city.

The State Minimum Wage Law provides that such hearings be held in order to give everybody an opportunity to express their views either for or against the recommendations of the Wage Board before a minimum wage order is promulgated for the industry.

Minimum cash wages of 26 cents an hour for waitresses, 33 cents for chambermaids and bathmaids and 36 cents for all other women and minors in all-year hotels who do not receive meals or lodging were unanimously recommended by the board. These rates which apply to non-residential workers are subject to the minimum wage order.

As surely as the new Buick FIREBALL* straight-eight engine sets the performance pace for the coming season, the graceful silhouette of the new Buick SPECIAL and CENTURY cuts the automotive style pattern for another half decade.

The reason is not alone the grace of its Buick-created lines, nor the appearance of solid substance in action that gives this honey the look of a speedster straining at its leash.

It is the practical quality of great room enclosed in sleek and flowing lines—more room for legs, for elbows, for heads, more room for entrance and more room for carrying luggage—that makes this the silhouette the cars of the future will seek to achieve.

Why wait for that—when in this Buick you travel in a car that, like time and tide, obviously isn't waiting for any man?

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: Pedro inquires about John and John writes about Pedro. Constance feels she is being honest with neither of them. Reexamining her agreement with John she realizes what a spot she is in.

Chapter 23

'Try To Understand'

EVEN the fire, which had died to coals, blazed to new life with Pedro's return. Flames leaped with the draught from the door, to throw bright lights on the dark face, to reflect flames in the dark eyes.

Constance ran an inquiring finger along the plane of his cheek and wondered if all things untenable became increasingly pre-

"You can't borrow without security, Pedro," she chided.

"Michael, hasn't anyone ever told you that you can't bargain with love? Child, there's no security in it, nothing but loneliness when you're away; loneliness and doubt and . . . Michael, how could I talk steer beef when I was thinking of you? I was afraid I'd try to sell some tough honoree on a lot with Irish eyes and skin that rated ninety-nine percent cream."

He released her to build up the fire. The logs caught, blazed, filled the room with golden light, as Pedro's presence there seemed to fill it with life and vitality.

"What have you been doing while I've been away?" he demanded.

Constance remembered. "Thinking, Pedro."

"Too much of anything is dangerous," he chided, and leaned forward to study her — "what's wrong?"

Constance sat thinking, sat watching Pedro. She was distrusting John Raskthorne as she had previously distrusted Pedro. Why? Was she so fickle, so vacillating, she swung to the man in whose presence she was?

Two months ago she had thought, "It is Pedersen, and I against the Taylors and the Cabrillos, with John to back me."

Now she thought, "It is Pedersen, Peter Senior and I, against John and the Cabrillos, with Pedro to back me."

Until she was sure she was not alone in this fight for El Cabrillo, until she knew, without question, who would back her to win, she couldn't speak; she couldn't risk disloyalty.

"I can't tell anyone, Pedro," she answered slowly.

"That's all right, providing it doesn't burden you too much. Why not tell me hypothetically?"

Constance wondered if she could break down the essentials and put them into a few words.

"Pedro," she asked, "what is victory? Attainment of a thing, a person, a condition, or what?"

"To me, the victory lies in the battle. No one can defeat you if you come out of the battle knowing you've given your best. You can lose every earthly possession, every earthly love, but as long as you know you have played the game to the best of your ability, you're not defeated."

In the deep sigh which came from Constance, came also her doubts and fears. "Thank you, Pedro." She stretched her hand to him. "That's what I needed to know."

"And I think," added Pedro, holding her hand tightly, "that Michael Mahoney wouldn't count a battle lost until he had been slammed into the bastile and the key was turned on him. Even then his luck might turn at the zero hour."

"Now let's talk business," suggested Constance. "I'll have Juliano serve dinner in here; provided he'll allow us to remain alone without a duenna. Poor Juliano, every time he sees me in slacks, he heads for the chapel to say a dozen prayers for my soul."

Pedro was home and all was right with the world.

Quicken Pace

ALL was right with John Raskthorne. Constance wondered how she could have thought John, her friend, faithful, ever-patient John, would have taken advantage of their agreement. It was ludicrous. They'd find a way to keep the ranch in the hands of the Cabrillos. Now all effort must be concentrated on making it a success.

Pedro was home. He arrived just in time to save Constance from something, she was never sure just what it was. The last round-up threatened to be a funeral affair. Little brown men rode sadly out of El Cabrillo, herding the last beef cattle to market. Pedro rode with them. They all returned together, in high spirits.

Dolores, watching, shook her head. "Pedro," she sighed, "from his hand he can make them eat."

Life on El Cabrillo quickened its pace. False spring came and the fields were planted. The Dutch Belted herd moved into the first quarters, ready, and immediately started giving the ranch its first feeling of a dairy.

Truckloads of lowing, protesting cows came in from the south to stumble down the runways, look about with resigned eyes, then sniffing food, amble over to feed bins and accept El Cabrillo as home.

Even the Cabrillo men grew contented. "Señorita," Francisco, a milker, called one evening, "look, Saint Channel Daisy, she is giving increase. Since I, Francesco, have fed thees Guernsey herds, they have grow in thees mielk and thees butter fat. Manuelo, he who hath thos Dutch Belted, he has not soch butter fat." And his brown face beamed with pride above the starched white collar of his uniform.

Now it remained only for the railroad to be completed so that they could bring in the rest of the herds and start El Cabrillo Rancho on its road to security.

Meanwhile Constance and Pedro rode. The hills were no longer scarred brown but the tender young green of new grass, and the canyons were filled with mauve mists. Purple rain clouds capped the peaks to shed silver streaks on the lowlands.

The poppies came like golden coins scattered by the careless hands of a Cabrillo, or heaped in mounds flanked by purple lupin.

Constance, watching the dark quiet man who rode beside her, found her own likeness to this land. Something new, tender and selfless was growing in her heart, veiled from maturing by a promise given in the winter of a strange country.

"Who said the sands of time ran swiftly?" demanded Pedro, as they sat in the shelter of a live oak while the spring shower peppered their retreat. "Michael, why three years?"

Constance sprang up and walked to the edge of their shelter, then turned back. "Because I promised, Pedro. You said, that first day, 'how explain love to one who has never loved?' How did I know you couldn't bargain with love?"

He was beside her, was holding her arms tightly. "You made some such bargain when you were east," he stated. "Didn't you know then?"

"Oh Pedro, how could I tell it wasn't an infatuation, some romantic dream, proninuity. Pedro, how do I know now that it isn't?"

"Don't you know?"

I Didn't Think'

THE rain droned on the trees and the rocks. Constance lifted clear eyes to Pedro's. "That night I came back; then when you returned from your trip; those two short times I spent in your arms, I didn't think. I didn't want to think, it was enough to be . . . be there with you. That's why I asked you to promise there'd be no more of this."

"Love isn't a matter of the brain," Pedro protested. "Marriages that are thought out are loveless affairs. God knows, Michael, I didn't want to love you. I wanted El Cabrillo more than anything in the world, until I met you, and then I couldn't fight you to take it away from you."

"What I should do is lift you by this mop of blue-black hair, drag you to Beachport, fling you down before the magistrate and say — 'come on, say the necessary. I want this woman bound to me so she won't be able to go out bargaining with love.' And then drag you home . . . to our home, Michael."

Constance knew in the next moment that what she wished he could do. All of her independence fled; her desire to prove herself to the world; her responsibility to the family. Even El Cabrillo was no longer home. Anyplace with Pedro would be home.

He released her suddenly. "Damn civilization," he snapped, mounted, and waited for her. She saw then it was no longer raining.

They rode silently down to the ranch, their horses lifting mingling feet from the puddles; the puddles giving the gold of the sun back with doubled radiance.

Constance was thinking, it's too late now, I can't sell out. I can't do anything. I'm tied for the three years. I owe that to everyone.

"Pedro," she rode close to him, "please try to understand."

Some of the sadness she had seen in his eyes, that first evening at Marias was there, disappointed?

"I am trying, Michael," he answered. "I have been, right along. I can't understand why, if you love me, you don't trust me enough to tell me everything.

"I won't ask you further. As I said, it's your battle. But from now on . . . it's up to you." He leaned forward to look down into the valley. "What's going on down there . . . at the ranch?"

Through a break in the willows Constance saw the sun glinting down on the wet hood of a car. Don's car. Behind it was her own little coupe.

"Oh dear," she breathed, "it looks as though the family had arrived. Oh dear," she said again, and rode forward, leaving a completely puzzled Pedro, following.

The Family had arrived. Constance knew it the moment she heard Juliano's face. It was radiant. He bestowed upon her a most superior lifting of eyebrows as he made the announcement.

"The Cabrillos," he said, loftily, "have come to their home . . . to live."

To live . . . the Cabrillos.

"Constance" John Raskthorne stepped out of the door and took Constance in his arms. "Darling, I couldn't stay away from you a minute longer. I—" He looked up, aware only then of Pedro.

Constance looked also. The contempt she saw in the eyes of young Peter Taylor seemed to paralyze her tongue.

Truck Strike Threatens

New York, Sept. 10 (UPI)—A trucking strike threatened today after rejection by two operator organizations of Mayor LaGuardia's formula for settling a contract dispute between employers and 10,000 drivers. The truck drivers are members of Local 801 International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL). Under the mayor's proposal, drivers would get one week's vacation with pay, but the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau, largest of three operator organizations, declared it could not sign such an agreement since it would represent a more favorable

Expresses Appreciation

The following letter of appreciation to Chairman David Hillson and citizens of Phoenicia has been sent by the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, it is announced today:

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 9, 1940.

Mr. David Hillson, Chairman of the Citizens of Phoenicia and the M. F. Whitney Hose Co. To you and the citizens of your community who helped to make our fifth annual convention such decided success, we extend our sincere thanks and hearty congratulations.

Our association with you were most pleasant, your welcome cordial and nothing apparent was left done for the comfort, pleasure and entertainment of the visiting men and their friends.

The arrangement of the entire program for the convention was excellent and left little, if anything, to be desired.

We trust the people of Phoenicia enjoyed having us with them as much as we enjoyed being with them. The visiting members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association were unanimous in their expressions and desire that they might have the privilege of opportunity of being your guest at some future time on a similar occasion.

We have not forgotten our arm receptions in Kingston. Port Jervis, Ellenville and Wallkill, and we will be glad to add Phoenicia.

Again we congratulate the people of Phoenicia for the decided success of this convention and the warm reception extended to us.

Yours sincerely,
Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

F. J. Wynne, Secretary.

Senate Leaders
Urge Bill Action
For Huge Lending

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Reckly acknowledging that the program was aimed at "Hitler" and "Nazi infiltration," Senate leaders pressed today for approval of a $500,000,000 loan fund to assist trade in South America.

Majority Leader Barkley (D., N. Y.), after getting unanimous Senate consent to a strict limitation on debate, forecast a final vote on legislation which would increase funds of the government's export-import bank and broaden its powers.

Barkley, in answer to a series of speeches criticizing the loan program as asked by President Roosevelt, said he had reliable information that "Hitler" is offering armaments to some South American nations after this war is over.

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), chairman of the Senate banking committee and floor leader for the legislation, told the Senate earlier that the "Nazi" leaders sought economic controls in South America and would follow with attempts to gain political controls.

Methodist Church Slate
Is Approved at Meeting

At the official board meeting of Trinity Church Tuesday night the following events of interest to all members were approved:

Wednesday evening, October 2—a social evening in the Sunday school room when the talent money with increase will be returned and individual experiences will be given.

Sunday, October 13, has been set apart for the October special offering. Information will be sent to each member prior to that date.

Sunday, September 22, will be observed as rally day for the members of church and Sunday school special programs at all services.

October 16, at 6:30 o'clock, the annual dinner for the men of the church. Dr. Hough Houston has been engaged as special speaker and will relate the story of his recent trip to Palestine.

Germans Promise Tremendous Raids

damp packages in British bombers, the Germans assert.

One plane can carry as many as a quarter million of them.

Scattered over the countryside, they dry out and burst into flames—a persistent little fire eight inches high.

The British say that the cards are effective in setting fire to munitions, supplies in open trucks, and in routing Germans out of hideouts in the woods.

That they are effective is indicated by the German complaint that farmhouses, barns, crops in the fields, and forests have been burned and that many persons have suffered injuries from picking them up for souvenirs.

This last suggests that possibly there is printed matter on them.

The British deny a German charge that the cards are poisonous, but acknowledge that they will burn anyone picking them up.

Royal Takes Shelter

King George and Queen Elizabeth took cover under a police station today when an air-raid alarm sounded as they were touring bombed areas of southeast London.

As the sirens shrieked, the king and queen left their car, in which they had been riding with Home Secretary Sir John Anderson, and walked downstairs into the shelter.

They resumed their tour when the "all clear" signal sounded 10 minutes later.

In the bleak, dim-lit shelter, the king saw one of the strangest assortments of humanity these class-leveiling air attacks have brought together.

Their majesties sat on bare wooden chairs in the center of the room, the king smartly dressed in his field marshal's uniform and the queen wearing a two-piece suit of almond beige. On benches around the walls were policemen, court officials, overalled ARP (air raid precautions) workers fresh from the ruins of a court house next door, white-smocked women from the police canteen, and others.

When the royal couple walked into the shelter, about 30 persons already there stared in astonishment, then clapped their hands. The king leaned back in his chair, crossed his legs and lit a cigarette.

One canteen woman hustled making tea, but it was not quite ready when the sirens sounded again. The king remarked:

"It's all clear, but I'm going to wait for some of that tea."

In a few moments, he and the queen were drinking from the heavy china cups marked "police canteen."

Anglo Palace Is Hit by Bomb tasks elsewhere on the 43 acres of St. James Park, with its pink geraniums and late summer flowers.

King George made a special trip from Windsor on Monday, after the bomb had dropped but before it exploded, and visited sections of London badly bombed the night before.

Although Buckingham Palace has been used steadily as a royal residence only about 100 years, it was originally built in 1703, in what was known as the Mulberry Gardens by John Sheffield, Duke of Buckinghamshire.

It was purchased by George III in 1762 and remodeled by George IV about 1825.

Since the accession of Queen Victoria in 1837, it has been the London residence of the British sovereign.

In Queen Victoria's reign, in 1847, a long east wing was built which converted the palace into a quadrangle enclosing a court-yard.

Londoners Search For 500 Believed Buried in Ruins

London, Sept. 11—Alternating between frantic efforts to move tons of masonry and silent listening for the tapping of entombed men and women, demolition squads still probed tonight the ruins of an East London school bombed Monday night when it sheltered nearly 5,500 persons.

They had taken temporary shelter on the first floor of the two-story concrete building when a strange, enormous bomb struck it apart and tumbled wreckage, dead and wounded into a huge crater opened up by the bomb.

The men, women and children had been quartered there, awaiting removal to the country after their own homes were wrecked by Saturday's raids. Rescue workers already have brought out two babies, still alive.

Physicians and nurses, working by torchlight in the hours of darkness gave first aid to the living and supervised the transportation of the dead as the debris was gradually cleared from the bomb crater, 20 feet deep and 40 feet wide.

Oak Hill, W. Va. (AP)—Remember the boyish bob that took the country by storm back in the '20's? That dad, says J. J. "Senator" Knox, started in Oak Hill. He should know, because he claims he originated the short, sleek haircut. Knox, a silver-haired artist of the shears, says the first girl to have her hair cut in the masculine fashion was Miss Nancy Sadler of Oak Hill. "Miss Sadler wanted her hair cut in a different way," he recalls. "I cut it short and high in the back. She liked it and I liked the idea too, so I sent it to barber magazines all over the country." Miss Sadler, now Mrs. Nancy Lindsay, still wears her hair in a boyish bob.

Scientist Perfects Process For Extracting Alumina

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 11. (AP)—A 40-year-old scientist in the Tennessee Valley Authority laboratory at Muscle Shoals, Ala., has perfected a process for extracting alumina—the essential material in making aluminum—from a common clay found in inexhaustible quantities in the United States, the Authority announced today.

The Authority called the discovery the "Walthall Process" after its inventor, John Henry Walthall of Roanoke, W. Va., a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology who joined the TVA staff five years ago.

"This process will increase many fold the sources of this important metal which is vital to our national defense," the Authority said. "It will make the United States completely independent of foreign countries for its supply of alumina-bearing raw materials."

It is a second line of protection and a future safeguard of the aluminum supply."

"The domestic supply of bauxite is adequate, but it is limited, while the alumina clay deposits are inexhaustible," the Authority said. "They are found in great quantities in the Tennessee valley as well as other parts of the United States."

A large proportion of bauxite used by the Aluminum Company of America, sole U. S. producer comes from the British and Dutch Guianas, the Authority asserted.

Plans are under way, it is understood, by the pastor, for the Alligerville Methodist Church to hold a public party and perhaps a turkey supper at Dreamland Farm, Alligerville, Sunday, October 3.

Edward Bardin, Jr., who has been spending his vacation here with his father has returned to the home of his grandmother at Sloansville to attend school there. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dietrich of Cromwell, Conn., spent the weekend at the home of Mrs. Dietrich's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Christensen.

Prompt House Action Asked On New 'Nationality Code'

New Measure to Tighten Citizenship Regulations Would Ban Nazis and Communists

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Prompt House action was sought today on a new nationality code which sponsors claimed would so "drastically tighten" existing naturalization regulations that Communists, Nazis and Fascists could not acquire United States citizenship.

Before the start of debate, Rep. Rees (R-Kas) told reporters that the main purposes of the legislation were "to implement the fight against 'fifth columnists' and to clear up thousands of cases of doubtful American citizenship."

Although no groups are mentioned by name, Rees asserted belief that Communists, Nazis and Fascists would be barred from naturalization by new eligibility provisions.

Present law bars anarchists, polygamists, persons unable to speak English, army and navy deserters and draft dodgers.

The new legislation also would deny citizenship to those who advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the United States government or who distribute literature or contribute money "or promise anything of value" to that end.

Sabotage Barred

Aliens who engage in or advocate sabotage also would be barred.

The legislation would repeal all existing nationality and citizenship laws and substitute a new code.

One provision which Rees said was aimed at strengthening national defense would make certain native and foreign born natives prove they had not expatriated themselves if they stayed six months in the country of their own or their parents' birth.

Informed sources said that the war department had asked that such a provision be applied to persons born in Hawaii or Alaska and that it was aimed particularly at Japanese born citizens in Hawaii who returned to Japan for military service.

Other provisions would:

Expatriate a citizen who served in the armed forces of a foreign power whether or not he had taken an oath of allegiance to the foreign sovereignty. Present law withdraws citizenship only from those who take an oath of allegiance in joining a foreign army or navy.

Expatriate a person born abroad of American parents unless that person came to the United States by the time he or she was 23 years old and claimed citizenship. All persons whether 23 or older now would be given two years after enactment of the measure in which to claim their citizenship.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech, incidentally, will come on the eve of Willkie's departure from Rushville, Ind., on an intensive stamping tour through 18 western states.

Our forces at sea know they have a people behind them who will never flinch, will never fail them, * * * but will draw from the sufferings a victory won, not only for our side, but for the better days that are to come."

Churchill, in opening his speech, said the air attacks so far had "failed conspicuously."

Heads for Debates

The question of a third term appeared headed for open debate at the American Bar Association's annual convention in Philadelphia. The resolutions committee rejected an anti-third term proposal yesterday, and approved instead one calling for a single six-year presidential term in the future.

It was announced that the convention would receive both resolutions for discussion later in the week. The committee-rejected resolution would "unqualifiedly" condemn Mr. Roosevelt's third term candidacy.

In Mineral Wells, Texas, the Texas Democratic Convention endorsed national and state tickets. First, however, it heard keynote speaker Hal R. Collins applauded and booted when he criticized "wasteful" government spending. Elliott Roosevelt, the president's son, replied to Collins, upholding the administration's policies.

Turning to the effects of the air raids on London, the prime minister said, "All the world" marvels at the courage, the fortitude of the people who are withstanding these attacks.

"Our forces at sea know they have a people behind them who will never flinch, will never fail them, * * * but will draw from the sufferings a victory won, not only for our side, but for the better days that are to come."

Plans Made to Call Men 21-30 Years

British dive bombers in a spectacular raid on Berlin early today scored direct hits on the Potsdam railway station in the heart of the German capital, the British announced.

In a special bulletin the air ministry said several of the pilots made gliding attacks through a fence anti-aircraft barrage and found their targets with heavy bombs and several hundred incendiary explosives.

The raid was carried out despite a ground haze which shrouded the city.

Returning pilots reported one particularly large fire and several smaller ones which leaped up after their attacks.

Text of Communique

The conferees revised a House section to provide that housing, sanitation and health accommodations must be available for all men when they were inducted into service.

West Point, Annapolis and Coast Guard academy cadets and apprentices, as well as final-year students in the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps were exempted from draft registration under another provision which was approved.

Still untouched in the bill, besides the age and 60-day delay sections, were conflicting versions of amendments permitting the government to take over industrial plants whose owners refused to fill defense orders and a Senate proposal to place a ceiling on the profits on arms, munitions and other defense supplies.

Drove Truck on Wrong Side of White Line

Charged with reckless driving in having driven his tractor trailer truck on the wrong side of the double white line on the hill south of the Port Ewen bridge, Louis Masucci of Paterson, N. J., was arraigned before Justice B. H. Sleight of Port Ewen Tuesday afternoon. He paid a fine of $10. Deputy Sheriff Winnie, who made the arrest said that Masucci was over on the wrong side of the line going up the hill while another truck was occupying the lane on the other side and that when he had some distance further along the road he claimed that "down in Jersey" they didn't do anything to drivers for crossing the white line.

Adjournment Plans

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Administration leaders, acting on President Roosevelt's assurance that he had no further major proposals at this time, laid plans to day to adjourn Congress until January some time between September 21 and 28. Only one important piece of legislation has yet to be started through Congress—a billion dollar deficiency bill to pay the first year's cost of conscription—and leaders felt that action on this, on the pending tax and conscription bills, and on remaining minor measures, could be completed in about two weeks.

LaGuardia Backs F.D.R.

Washington, Sept. 11 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia of New York city told the International Brotherhood of Teamsters today that "as long as President Roosevelt heads our country" the purpose of national defense preparations would be to keep us out of war. President Roosevelt, he declared, "recognized the danger facing our country" and has taken steps to prepare the national defense. But all the preparations and the prospective training of a citizen army, LaGuardia said, have but one purpose.

"As long as President Roosevelt heads our country," he asserted, "that purpose is to keep us out of war."

Times Bureau Closes

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—The New York Times in dispatch from Varna, Bulgaria, announced today that its bureau in Moscow, U. S. S. R., established 18 years ago, had been closed. The story was written by G. E. R. Gedye who was the Times' correspondent in Moscow, and was dated July 30. In an editorial on the decision to close the bureau, the Times said Gedye had wished to leave for the last six months, "believing his opportunities to serve this newspaper were completely nullified by the censor XXX."

Some enemy planes succeeded in penetrating Berlin, unloading bombs," said the communiqué. "At numerous places in residential and business sections fires started."

One British plane was reported brought down by anti-aircraft guns, with pursuit planes getting another. German naval artillery on the channel coast was said to have shot down four British planes.

The Germans acknowledged loss of but three of their own planes in the preceding 24 hours of action against England and chalked up these successes:

Starting of "numerous" fires amid industries in the city and port of London where earlier bomb-set blazes were still to be seen.

Bombardment of "other war essential targets, especially port facilities, airports and industrial plants in the southeastern part of the British Isle."

Authorized spokesmen declared "more planes have been on the way to England since early morning" but insisted they had been ordered to concentrate on industrial and dock regions and military establishments.

In the British raid, which began shortly after midnight, and lasted nearly two hours, incendiary bombs pierced the roof of the Reichstag, presently unused but still regarded by Germans as a symbol of the Reich. Workmen were said to have extinguished the flames immediately.

G.A.R. Is on March

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 11 (AP)—The Grand Army of the Republic was on the march again today, but only a handful of the graying veterans turned out to walk behind the colors they defended almost 80 years ago. Opening their 74th national encampment in the home town of their war-time commander-in-chief, Abraham Lincoln, most of the old soldiers were resigned to riding in automobiles for the six block parade.

Last Playhouse Concert to Feature Contra-Bass Artist

The final concert of the season at the Woodstock Playhouse Saturday, September 14, at 4 o'clock will feature Ludwig Juh, the internationally famous virtuoso on the contra-bass.

Mr. Juh is a member of the Boston Symphony and came to this country after a colorful career in Europe. The son of Esthonian farmers, at the age of 17 he discovered his musical vocation and decided to study music.

The young musician tried several instruments including the fute but none of them satisfied him until he tried the double bass. Recognizing it as the instrument for his forte he undertook his studies with such remarkable enthusiasm and perseverance that he became one of the greatest artists on that instrument in the world.

After a spectacular concert career in Europe, Mr. Juh came to this country and was introduced to the American public by Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, who himself had begun as a contra-bass virtuoso, later abandoning it for conducting.

At his Boston debut, Mr. Juh played Mr. Koussevitsky's "Concerto for Double-Bass," using Mr. Koussevitsky's own instrument. Since then Mr. Juh has become a member of the Boston Symphony, concertizing at the same time in the U. S. and Canada.

Mr. Juh will play at the Saturday concert a "Sonata" by the old English composer, Eccles, then a "Melodie" by Gluck, and a "Gavotte" by Corelli.

For the second half of the program Mr. Juh will play "Vidambita" and "Esthonian Minuet" by Vladimir Padwa, and "Souvenirs" and "Scherzo" by Ludwig Juh.

Vladimir Padwa, pianist, and musical director of the Playhouse concerts, will share the program with Mr. Juh in this last concert of the 1940 series. He will play "Andantino" by Mozart-Busoni, "Three Minuets" by Bach-Petri, and finally, the "Carnival" by Schumann.

Mr. Juh plays a Francesco Rugeri (Cremona 1679) contra-bass.

No Ladies' Day Tournament

Mrs. Hamilton Lauria was hostess for the day. Next week's event will bring to a close the summer scheduled Ladies' Days. Mrs. Andrew Cook will be the hostess.

Home Bureau Begins Season
The Kingston Unit of Home Bureau held its first meeting of the fall season Tuesday afternoon at the Governor Clinton Hotel with the new chairman, Mrs. A. DuBois Rose, presiding. The subject for the afternoon was on "Family Life" and was led by Mrs. A. L. Berwin.

Definite plans were made for the county-wide rally September 17 at High Falls. Following luncheon which will be served the members, the organization will be addressed by Prof. Edgar V. Beebe of the New Paltz State Normal School who will speak on "The Use of Psychology in American Life."

All members desiring to attend the rally are requested to meet at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 11 o'clock the morning of the rally. Transportation will be provided those who need it.

Enthusiasm for Concert Friday
All those who attended the two previous concerts given by Pierre Henrotte and his distinguished artist colleagues for the benefit of the Benedictine Hospital are enthusiastic at the thought that another similar concert has been arranged by Mr. Henrotte for Friday of this week, at the Kingston High School Auditorium.

Tickets for the concert are being purchased with great alacrity which predicts a record attendance.

TWO-PIECE HAS NEW BUTTONING

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9518

The spotlight of style picks out the two-piece as one of the most popular fall and winter modes. Marian Martin offers her striking versions of this style in Pattern 9518. The two-section skirt has the new slimmer lines, but with plenty of fullness for perfect walking freedom. But it's the top that holds your interest. Made in the slightly longer length currently so smart, the new-to-the-side feeling is expressed by a side-front buttoning. There's a high, youthfully rounded collar that would look well in either matching fabric or tasteful contrast—say velvetine. The sleeves are long or short; a buckled belt may be added. Here's a "must have" for your fall sewing list!

Pattern 9518 may be ordered in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, jacket and skirt, are established in their newly furnished apartment on the Ridge Road.

Miss Longyear is a graduate of the College of Wooster, Class of 1938, and has been secretary to the principal and clerk of the Board of Education of Phelps Central School. Mr. Ward is a graduate of the College of Wooster, Class of 1938, and of Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He is affiliated with the Detroit Edison Co. The wedding will take place in the early autumn.

The organist, Frederick C. Mayer, will play, among other numbers, the prelude to "Lohengrin," by Wagner. She has appeared extensively on both sides of the Atlantic as an accomplished exponent of the Theremin, having given recitals in Budapest, Munich, Milan, Oslo and New York.

Parking of cars in the vicinity of the chapel is permitted. The organ recitals are free to the public, and all lovers of music are invited to attend. The second recital of the autumn series will be held on October 13.

Kingston Gridders May Lose Nock to National Guard

Veteran Lineman Is Eligible for the Call to Service

Coaches Seem Well Pleased With Appearance of Both Backfield and Line

The first complication in the plans of Kingston High School to cop the DUSO League title popped up yesterday afternoon when it was learned that Al Nock, veteran lineman, would be eligible for National Guard duty.

While the Maroon and White gridders have been working out at municipal stadium in preparation for their opening non-league start with Amsterdam on Saturday, September 28, in the Carpet City, most followers failed to realize that Nock and possibly a few more athletes would be lost to the club.

According to the order issued by President Roosevelt recently, all National Guardsmen will be called for the training period Monday, September 16. However, there is a slight chance that the Kingston body of National Guardsmen won't be called in the first assignment.

Might Not Go

Although the chance of Nock's staying with the gridders is 50-50, local sport followers hope that the sturdy lineman won't be called until after the grid season is over. Kingston is banking on Nock this year to hold up his side of the line.

Both Ray Fuller and Boyd Miller, taking over while Tommy Weems is in Atlantic City, have announced that the Maroon line looks considerably strong in this early stage.

Kingston still has a few more weeks of preliminary drilling before the 1940 season gets under way and in these weeks the local mentor is expected to have his charges in full power. Kingston opens the schedule by meeting the strong Amsterdam Carpetmakers. These two teams have opened a series now which has put a lot of color in each game. Kingston won last year by 20 to 19.

Backfield Looks Good

During the drills to date the combine of Miller and Fuller have been interested largely in the work of Frank Tucker, Joe Benjamin, Jack Fallon, Bill Ball, Ed Esposito and Bud Ellsworth. Bob Messinger, another great prospect for full-time duty this season, has impressed the coaches and onlookers.

With the coming weeks of practice the local school should find Kingston presenting a very strong line. A number of veterans are returning for action this year plus a batch of recruits which should build Kingston a fine working front line. In the secondary Kings- ton will be represented by a number of ace men.

Right now Fallin, Ball, Esposito, Tucker and Benjamin form a good backfield. But these fellows will have plenty of opposition in store from the up and coming grid athletes who are working out daily at the stadium in hopes of winning a berth on the team this fall.

Looking Over List of Teams

President James G. Norton of the Silver Palace Bowling League, right, looks over the list of teams registered to date for competition this fall and winter, as Kenneth Van Etten, the smiling secretary and James Roe, vice president, center, also get a glimpse of the lineup of clubs. Another meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 17, and at that session plans are to be completed for first matches of the loop on September 20. Teams listed and their captains are: The Well, H. Re; Cool- erators, C. Baltz; Vining and Smith, S. Vining; Central Lunch, M. Bailey; Empire Liquor, E. Wilpan; Millard, C. Port; Vogel's Dairy, T. Vogel; Ulster Foundry, J. Roe; J. Feye, F. Otto; Longendyke, F. Storms; Moose, J. Norton; Teetsel Grocer, H. Teetsel. Prospective clubs for the league are Chic Miller's bowlers, Apollo Magneto, Telephone Co., and Dawkins Grocers.

Old Mose Grove Lasts 13 Innings to Beat Tigers, Indians Are in the Lead

Victory Lifts Boston Up to Within Four Games of the American League Lead

By The Associated Press
Life does begin at forty and Lefty Grove, the gaunt ghost with a magnificent past and doubtful future, has returned to haunt the trembling American League as Proff.

Old Mose maneuvered through 13 innings yesterday to conquer the Detroit Tigers 6-5 and cast the chaotic pennant race into greater confusion with Cleveland again in front.

Earlier this season old Mose, who was 40 last March, seldom managed to last nine innings. When he broke a bone in his foot in August and was reported lost to the Boston Red Sox for the year, nobody figured it made much difference to Boston one way or the other except sentimentally.

Then a week ago Sunday he came out of the limbo of the lost and battled for 13 innings against a strong kid half his age, Sid Hudson of Washington, and won.

Yesterdays' game was up against the leading pitcher of the league, Buck Newson, winner of 18 games against three losses, and a gallant team was on the hot end of a five-game winning streak and in first place in the league.

Grove gave up three hits, one of them Hank Greenberg's 30th home run, for three tallies in the first inning. But after that allowed only one run in the next ten innings and was never behind after his teammates tied up the score at 3-all in the sixth.

He stopped Rudy York, hero of a couple of Detroit's recent triumphs. With the bases loaded and the score tied in the ninth he forced the slugger to ground to short for the third out and in both the 11th and 13th innings he fanned York for the third out.

His victory lifted the Red Sox within four games of the lead.

The Cleveland Indians and the New York Yanks were kept idle by rain yesterday and both gained

In other American League action yesterday the Washington Senators subdued the Chicago White Sox 5-2, and their teammates producing the season's third triple play in the ninth and the Philadelphia Athletics wipped the St. Louis Browns 6-4 in a night game on two three-run homers by Frank Hayes and Bob Johnson.

The only National League games that escaped the rain were in a doubleheader that Pittsburgh captured from the Phillips 11-3 and 11-1 in two big batting displays. Catcher Ben Warren of the Phils was "beamed" by one of Rip Sewell's pitches in the first game and hurt seriously.

Cincinnati and Boston had one game washed off the schedule entirely, because they already were carded for a doubleheader today in their last date with each other.

But since the Reds have a seven-game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers the fact that their schedule was shaved to 153 games was unlikely to affect the race.

Tex O'Rourke Says W. Willkie Will Be Great Champion

Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican candidate for President of the United States has all the attributes which go to make up a champion in the opinion of Tex O'Rourke, a promoter of champions, who predicts Mr. Willkie will be the champion President of the United States.

Mr. O'Rourke bases his opinion on his long experience in dealing with champions—he was manager of Jess Willard and groomed him for the world's heavyweight championship. Mr. O'Rourke, in his early days, was one of the outstanding sheriffs in Texas and is now the executive director of the Circus Saints and Sinners, a New York organization which includes in its membership such men as Dr. Roy A. DaFoe, who ushered the quintuplets into the world; Tony Sarg, the famous cartoonist, and creator of marionettes; ex-Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey and others of equal note.

"Wendell Willkie will win because he has what makes great champions. I've known many champions, but only a few really great ones. Somehow I can't class a champion as great if he rates himself as being more important than the game; if he persists in squeezing personal gain and glory out of his title, forgetting the game which makes his title possible; if he fails to give his public full value for its money; if he sidesteps an honest challenge; if he tries to slip in a hand-picked referee, or if he packs the ringside with paid stooges whose lusty cheers might influence the judges.

"A great champion knows that he has but a short span at the top, and gives his best while he has it. He accepts his honors with gratitude, defends them with generosity and surrenders them with grace. Wendell Willkie strikes me as being like that.

This year Pontiac presents three entirely new lines; everyone a "torpedo," and every model offering a choice of a six or eight engine.

Mr. Boessneck stated the 1941 Pontiacs are entirely new—bigger, more powerful, more comfortable, with the same record economy that made this year's Pontiac a sensation.

Today Mr. Boessneck and Tom Larsen, manager of the service department, are at the Pontiac assembly plant at Linden, New Jersey, attending the 1941 Pontiac technical school. The school covers in detail all the new mechanical advancements made on the new Pontiac cars.

The Mission of the Immaculate Virgin is the largest child-caring home in the New York archdiocese, with a normal population of more than 1,000 boys and girls in a thousand-acre farm and school plant on Raritan Bay, near Stapleton, originally purchased by the late Father John C. Drumgoole in 1882.

Approximately 1,500 alumni, wives and children are expected at the first reunion.

Mrs. Mary Hirzel returned to her home Sunday after spending two weeks with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schryver, of Glascow.

Maylon Hotaling of Hurley called on his brother, James Hotaling, and family, Sunday afternoon.

and farm problems are realities to him. I believe he'll find a better solution for over-production than the chopping block.

"I like his clean cut attack. I believe he'll make short work of this chaotic tangle our blundering theorists and their mistakes have gotten us into.

"I like the way the public comes up to him. He'll make a popular champion. This country needs that sort of a leader—one who has the ability to inspire the confidence needed to revive business enterprise.

"And, I like his fresh enthusiasm. I believe he'll bring new life and purpose to the game. When an old champion slows down; when he begins to talk about how good he used to be; when he starts digging up excuses for his poor showing; when he resorts to questionable tactics or last minute flurries, to cover up his weaknesses—he's through. When that comes, and I believe it has, we need a new champion.

"For these reasons I believe Wendell Willkie will be our next champion—and a great one."
